Biography

Australian-born and London-based, I'm a DJ and founder of Sonically Pleasing, a platform built around discovering and sharing good music. My sound moves across soulful house, jazzy house, afro house, disco, funk and everything in between. I've been DJing since the age of 18, starting out in Sydney before making my way into London's music scene. Over the years, I've played a range of venues and events, and continue to explore new sounds and bring different influences into my sets. I love digging for music, finding those tracks people might not have heard before and creating a vibe that brings people together. For me, it's always about the music, the energy and connecting with people through sound, wherever I play.
