Biography

Valentina is a DJ whose sound moves primarily between techno and hardgroove, drawing influences from house and electronic music from the 90s and 2000s. Rather than sticking to a specific genre, her approach is driven by a constant search for sounds that connect naturally with one another.

Digging plays a central role in the way she approaches music. She pays particular attention to discovering and bringing back lesser-known tracks, building a personal selection that moves away from the predictable. For her, a DJ’s identity lies as much in the music they choose as in the way they bring it together.

In her sets, she enjoys playing with different sounds and gradually building energy, while keeping the rhythm and connection with the dancefloor. Her selection changes depending on the moment, but always maintains the energetic character that defines her style.

A resident DJ of the Future Headliners collective, she has performed several times at City Hall, including a solo All Night Long set. She has also played at Club Origen alongside the Allegory of Beats collective.
